Carlens Getting Ready For the Roarin' Game

A meeting of the Curling Club was held in the Municipal Office on Monday night. A representative number of members were present when the meeting was opened by Pres. D. McEwen. The liabilities of the club came in for much discussion. The question of caretaking and the renovating of the rink-building to stand for another Curling season, caused much serious thought.

After much debate, and on motion, it was decided to fix the membership fee for the coming season at $25.

Apertion was signed by rate-payers present asking the town council to supply lumber and water and pay half the wages of a caretaker who would look after both the Curling and Skating Rinks. Messrs. A. Hay and W. Crosbie were appointed a committee to interview the Council. Pending the decision of the Council no actual headway of getting the Curling Rink prepared can be made, as the hiring of a caretaker cannot be made until such decision is arrived at.

The question of ladies' curling was brought forward. A motion was made that certain afternoon's be set aside for this purpose; that wives be allowed to curl on husband's tickets and that a fee of $6 be charged other ladies.

The question of handicapping closed the evening's discussion which had been carried on very genially. Messrs. R. Gray, Dr. MacCharles and I. McLean, were appointed rink and handicapping committee.

It is reported that 9,000 men are looking for work in Toronto.

A farmer in great need of an extra hand recently asked John Smith, a harvest excursionist, if he would help him out. "What'll you pay?" asked John. "I'll pay you all you're worth," answered the farmer. John scratched his head a minute and answered decisively, "I'll be darned if I'll work for that."

EXTRA STEPS MEAN DOLLARS-MADE

An Armistice Day Appeal

In a few days people the world over will celebrate the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, that great event which signified the final triumph of the cause of freedom over the powers of a military autocracy bent upon world domination and a denial of those great principles for which liberty loving people have struggled and died throughout the long centuries of the past.

Armistice Day is one which should never be forgotten, nor its significance to the whole human race ignored. It should be indelibly written upon the hearts of men and women everywhere, and should be imperishably stamped into the minds of the children now and in generations to come. More than this, each year on the anniversary of the Armistice may well be marked by some act of a notable character by the people in each of the countries allied in the war; some act in the nature of a freewill offering, a tangible and practical expression of thanks for the victory achieved, an unusually recurring day upon which some little sacrifice will be made by the many in all nations for the benefit of those whose misfortunes and sufferings call loudly for human sympathy and practical assistance.

So far as Canada is concerned, the Red Cross promotes some such national observance of Armistice Day this year, and it is fitting that the world's greatest and most widely known humanitarian organization should thus lead the way. Alone among all voluntary organizations of an international character, the Red Cross has been officially recognized by the League of Nations as a proper body to exercise functions and discharge important administrative duties of an international character, and it has been appealed to by the Council of the League of Nations to undertake as its first great work the checking of the terrible epidemic of disease now sweeping over a large portion of Europe, and relieve the indescribable suffering and distress which accompanies and follows that epidemic. Hundreds of thousands of people are stricken and dying of typhus, tuberculosis and hunger, while positively millions of children, thousands upon thousands of whom are orphans, lack food, clothing, shelter and care and are dying in appalling numbers.

To meet this awful need, and if possible prevent the spread of typhus throughout the world, the League of Red Cross Societies, which now includes thirty different countries, is sending doctors, nurses, medicines, food and other necessities into the stricken countries. In order that the British Empire, always foremost in works of civilization and humanity all over the globe, may discharge its full duty in the present great emergency, a British Empire War Relief Fund has been inaugurated under the patronage of H.M. the King, and with the support of all political parties and humanitarian organizations. This fund is to be administered by the British Red Cross Society in co-operation with the League of Red Cross Societies.

The people of the Empire are asked to contribute $100,000,000 to this fund, and of this amount $50,000,000 is to be raised in the amount which Canada ought to supply. The Canadian Red Cross has assumed the task of raising this half million dollars, and Armistice Week has been designated as the period during which an appeal will be made to the Canadian people to make contributions which, in the aggregate, will total that amount.

The efforts of the Canadian Red Cross during and since the war have, very properly, been largely confined to work for our own soldiers and sailors, and in the direction of promoting health, preventing disease and relieving distress and suffering at home. Now, in the face of untold horrors and suffering, a world appeal comes through the Red Cross to the Canadian people. It is an appeal to which the Red Cross organization could not turn a deaf ear. It is a call to service which cannot be resisted and must not be denied. This is a call to service which is not narrow nor selfish; the whole world is its field and all peoples of every clime and color have a claim upon its sympathy and support.

In Western Canada the appeal on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund will be made to the people through local branches of the Red Cross and in the newspapers. All contributions will be sent to Red Cross headquarters in the respective Provincial Divisions, and then forwarded through the local offices of the Red Cross to the British Red Cross.

As was the case on all occasions in the past, it is now hoped and expected that the warm-hearted, open-handed generosity of the people of the West will result in a prompt response to the appeal on behalf of the disease stricken and starving men, women and, more especially, children of Europe.

Prisoners of War

Many Thousands of European Soldiers Still Awaiting Repatriation. Although it is now nearly two years since the armistice was signed, that there are still 500,000 prisoners of war half-starved, half-naked, awaiting repatriation in Germany, Russia, Siberia and Turkey, must shock the conscience of the world.

Generally speaking, they are nationals of governments overthrown either by the war or by revolution themselves. Most of them are Austrians, Czechs, Rumanians, Poles and Serbs. Others are Russians, and taken in the great battles on the eastern frontier. Some are Russians held in France.

The break-up of the Austro-Hungarian empire left thousands upon thousands of former subjects without a government to care for them. The swift changes in power kept the succeeding governments engaged in problems at home, with little thought to spare for lost war prisoners.

The total field crops of Canada will this year reach nearly 1,250,000 bushels, while the products of hay and corn will exceed 25,000,000 tons as compared with over 1,000,000,000 bushels of grain and 20,000,000 tons of hay and corn in 1919, according to official figures. It is estimated that the price of 1920 wheat will average $2 per bushel. The field crops of Canada represent about $170 per head of the population, as compared with $110 per head in the United States.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Britain's Invisible Profits

Explain Her Ravable Position As Creditor Nation.

Despite immense floating obligations and the "balance of trade" running heavily against them, the British are not worrying lest they become a debtor nation. There is no danger of it, so long as the debt trade balance is more than offset by "invisible profits." These profits—in this connection more significantly called "invisible exports"—have always been the explanation of Great Britain's enviable position as a creditor nation; she is, perhaps, the only scarcely established one in the world. Great Britain is the world's great "middleman," importing vast quantities of goods to be reshipped from the ware houses in which they are received.

Care of Farm Machinery

Needed Repairs Should Be Made When Harvest Is Over.

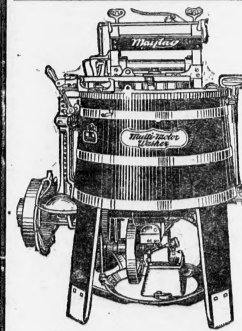

The attention that is given farm machinery this fall will determine its condition when it must be used in the spring. How many times have we found when we take the implements or machinery out of the shed in the spring that some repairs which were needed had not been attended to? And then—delay, when delay is costly, in the spring.

When the harvest is over, machinery should be collected and gone over for needed repairs. By cleaning, oiling and painting in the fall, rust and costly deterioration will be prevented during the winter, and the machines will be ready for use in the spring.

Last Brigade from Swan River to York Factory

By O. GEMAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyright)

To Mrs. A. M.
A Foreword: It is a hard matter for an old Fur Trader to take a pen and try to show the modern reader what the old days were like. But, when one is asked by a most charming and talented lady, and when she becomes persistent, why then nothing remains but to comply with her request.

In the spring of 1874 being at that time in apprentice clerk in the honorable Hudson's Bay Co.'s service, and residing in a salary of £30 a year, with the usual clerk's allowance (yearly) of 200 lb. flour, 200 lb. sugar, 20 lb. tea, 10 lb. of rice and 10 lb. of chocolate, with two pallons of wine and two of spirits. I received orders from the Chief Factor, at Fort Pills, to take charge of Shoal River House, which post was situated about sixteen miles from the mouth of the River, on the north side of Shoal Lake. Reaching there with two dogs and a sled, I received orders from the Chief Factor, at Fort Pills, to take charge of Shoal River House, which post was situated about sixteen miles from the mouth of the River, on the north side of Shoal Lake. Reaching there with two dogs and a sled, I received orders from the Chief Factor, at Fort Pills, to take charge of Shoal River House, which post was situated about sixteen miles from the mouth of the River, on the north side of Shoal Lake.

Trading furs kept me busily occupied until the opening of the lake and rivers, when official orders reached me to engage as many boatmen as possible to make the trip to York Factory, my post to be the starting point of the Brigade. Finally, having secured every able bodied man within a radius of 100 miles, the post began to assume appearance of a little town; long rows of Indian Tepees were erected along the ridge east of the Fort, dancing, gambling and love making, were the order of the day. Time was short and who could tell how many would return after the trip to the sea. My time was fully occupied, every man who signed a contract for the voyage, was entitled to draw half his wages in advance and there being no cash in circulation, this was paid out of the store goods. Finally the head guide, old Lon-lon-McNab, came in from Fort Poly with more men and the last of the boats and assumed absolute charge of the Brigade. Voe be to the mucky wick who departed his authority. Down he went with the first thing that came to hand. Now followed several days hard work, securing every boat would have the full complement of provisions, coverings, etc. Then carefully assembling the crews, for he knew to the minutest detail that every boat was manned by the best men of the York boat is manned by the eight men and a steersman. The heavy oars were a load for a man, so to get better mastery of them, every boatman was made to row the boat, and the whole crew rose and fell, as getting the steersman standing on a platform in the stern sheets, controls

The Liberal Leader

Every notion of the boat with a huge sweep, this being replaced by a rable when sailing, a single mast and large square sail being used when the wind was light.

Guide McNab fixes the time of starting for the next day and confusion increases. The shop which stood upon from early morning till late at night swarmed with men, women, children and dogs, for with every man engaged came a whole tribe of hangers on, expecting a little of his bounty. At last the time for departure came. A few steady old hands had pulled the boats up to the beach and ladders consisted of furs, goose quills and castorom for shipment to Britain; penmanic and dressed leather for posts on route to the Bay, provisions for the trip. But, alas, over twenty men were missing. Then McNab, arming himself with a stout rifle, requested me to join in the hunt, and one by one we discovered the deserters, some in Tepees under piles of bedding, others sheltered by recent deer skins, others in the woods. Out they were pulled, McNab's voice raging out in trumpet tones, a strange phantasm of English, French and Indian, predominating. Some were dragged, some carried to the boat and all were plucked in wild mimic ceremony. At last everything was ready, and though much beyond the time fixed for starting, off we pulled with the cheers of the men and shrill yells of the women to the Indian women and children, the eight boats passed out of sight round the point.

My orders were to accompany the Brigade until relieved, so leaving a trusty man in temporary charge of the fort, taking another and light canoe to assure my return, I commenced my mission in the stern sheets of the guide's boat. Nine miles down the Shoal River brought us to Lake Manitobah. It was beautiful, calm, the different boats lying with one another for leadership. Camp was pitched at Gravel Point, a watch post, situated on the right bank. Here were built for each crew and a smaller one for myself and guide. Each man was given his ration by the boatman of the boat, whose duty it was to issue rations of pemican and flour. In half an hour from starting, a full supply of bread was being rapidly baked, "Beaver Tail Bread." Would you like to know how it is made? Well, a stiff dough of flour and water, generally an empty sack, no shortening added, and when it attains the right consistency, lumps averaging half a pound, are heaped on a stick, and when already armed himself with a slender stick and half a dozen wood scraps, pulling the dough over one end, flattening it out at the base and gradually bringing it to a point at the tip, this all held firm by skewers across, the whole being resorted to the fire and a heavier stick is pushed into the ground before the fire and a few turns thoroughly cook it, and when eaten, it is by no means likely to be despised. Others of the men were busy cooking pemican in huge open kettles, some munching it raw. Jeering songs and stories made the camp an animated scene.

The gay capote of the French half-breed, with small hat set jauntily on the side of the head, surmounted by two black ostrich feathers, beads and silk work galore, made them the most conspicuous figures of the crowd. Gay songs followed every step, the rude patois of the Metis, all hands joining in the chorus, while sombre Indians looked on with sphinxlike faces; and at last bed, most fragrant spruce brush.

Hardly had I closed my eyes, when McNab's voice was heard in succession, "Leve, Leve, Leve, Leve, Leve, Leve," and beating time with a titter on the gnomes of a white dog followed every step, the rude patois of the Metis, all hands joining in the chorus, while sombre Indians looked on with sphinxlike faces; and at last bed, most fragrant spruce brush.

The Secrets Of the Great

Chas. M. Schwab Defines the Rules For Success

There is a way to the top, so we are told. Charles M. Schwab, the American steel magnate, has defined the secrets of success as follows:

"First—Unimpeachable Integrity. This is the first foundation. With this as a starting point the rest will be relatively easy."

"Second—Loyalty. As a rule I find that the university men are loyal. He loyal to the people with whom you are associated. Give credit always where credit is due, and remember always that it will attract credit to you to give credit to someone else. Make your employer believe that you are with him always, that you are proud to be with his department in connection."

"Third—A liberal education in the finer things of life, of art, literature, will contribute toward a success in life. Man needs imagination, and these are the sources for it."

"Fourth—Make friends. Enemies are easy to get. You can be surprised at the pleasantness that will surround you when you have made friends instead of enemies. Whatever your circumstances in life, boys, be generous. Make new friends, and these are the sources for it."

"Fifth—Concentrate. Learn to concentrate and think upon the problem in your mind, until you have reached a conclusion. Don't be afraid of mistakes. Don't blame a man if he makes them, but it is the fool that makes the same one twice."

"Sixth—Go at your work. You may not find yourself the first year. Don't hesitate to change from dissatisfaction with your first class of difficulties come up of trouble arises. Give the best that is in you. Let nothing stand in the way of your going on."

Establish Game Sanctuaries

Will Investigate Breeding Places of The Wild Fowl.

The Federal Government has sent James Lloyd, Ottawa, ornithologist, to the Dominion Parks Branch, to Manitoba to investigate certain wild fowl breeding areas which the authorities have in view for preservation.

Mr. Lloyd states that the Provincial Government has already a number of sanctuaries established but, for the preservation of the wild fowl and birds, it was necessary for the Federal Government to establish additional areas.

He said that the country becoming settled, breeding grounds once suitable for the birds had become farm lands. It was the intention of the Government to secure a number of areas before they also become units of the industry of the province.

Great Future for Alberta Oil Fields

Money Into Companies.

Calgary—That Alberta will prove to be a greater oil producing field than Kansas is, or ever will be, was the emphatic opinion expressed at a dinner at the Fair Hotel by S. W. Forrester, millionaire oil producer of Wichita, Kansas. Mr. Forrester made an offer to supply $100,000 of his own money to any company of Calgary people formed for the purpose of sinking one or two wells in any promising field in this province. This offer was made, he said, because he had faith in Alberta as an oil producing country.

Canadian Merchant Marine.

By the end of this year the Canadian Government Merchant Marine will have twelve steamers operating out of Vancouver, British Columbia. Five to Australia, four to the Orient and three to India. The first sailing of the boats to India will be in November, a monthly service to be maintained.

French Government Order Ships.

London—There have been placed on the Prince Rupert Drydock and Engineering Company for five steel oil tank steamers of about 6,500 tons each for the French Government. There are at present eight ships of 8,000 tons each under construction in British Columbia yards.

Loggers Big Payroll.

The annual payroll for those engaged in logging in British Columbia is $125,000,000, that of those employed in saw mills $9,250,000, of loggers for railroads $1,750,000, and of paper mills $3,000,000.

One of the things we can't buy on credit is experience.

The Golden Rule Is The High Ideal of The Community Club

To develop in the members of the community in the spirit of the golden rule the high ideal of the community club movement in Canada.

Excluding anything suggestive of sectionalism or sectarianism, this organization, though yet in the first stages of growth, has been of inestimable benefit to the citizens of every community in which a branch has been established, especially in rural districts. Through the inauguration of its aims and ideals a spirit of co-operation has been formed among many varied institutions of country districts which has resulted in the preservation of the community center, the sharing of community tasks, and the betterment of community conditions.

The inception of the Community Club idea in Manitoba was spontaneous, and there are already existing in the province thirty-four organizations in a flourishing condition. The work of the clubs has been of especial benefit in the nearly settled rural districts where it has done a great deal to offset the lack of social intercourse, one of the first handshakes in any pioneer district.

But its work in the older settled sections is immense and of wide scope. To help improve living conditions, to make life more wholesome, more attractive and more complete—this has been, and is, the chief aim of the community club in the farming districts. The clubs have been instrumental in providing lecturers from the universities and in seeing that there were substantial audiences present to hear them, agricultural chautauques have been staged in number of places; debates on problems of public interest have been held. Valuable work has been done among the younger generation. Boy Scout troops organized, classes of various kinds have been arranged, scholars prepared, and all kinds of team sports prepared and carried out. Working in co-operation with the Public Health Board, questions on matters of health and hygiene have had the attention of the clubs, discussions arranged, lectures arranged and active work done in the dissemination of educational propaganda.

Feeding Drugs to Milk Cows

Alf-Slaked Lime Has Slight Influence On Yield of Butter-Fat.

It is occasionally reported that phenomenal record yields have been produced on cows on test by feeding alf-slaked lime. The Delaware experiment station has been trying to look into this matter in a scientific way, experimenting with such drugs as saltpetre, spoon salt, alf-slaked lime, Poter's solution of arsenic, gentian, rosin, bicarbonate, ginger and several other drugs. As a result of the experiment it was found that only one of these drugs seemed to have any effect. Alf-slaked lime when fed at the rate of one ounce night and morning, seemed to have a slight influence on the yield of butterfat. The experiment was not really conclusive on this point, but in view of the fact that lime is a very important constituent of milk, and that cows generally draw heavily on the lime in their skeletons while giving milk, it is very possibly good policy to mix lime with the feed of dairy cows, as a means of indicating that perhaps it is good policy to feed bone meal to dairy cows. Bone meal, like lime, is very rich in calcium, which is the one mineral element that seems to be most appreciated by cows giving milk.

Religious Education Convention at Medicine Hat

Miss Olive Ziegler, National Girls' Work Secretary of the Methodist Church in Canada will be one of the leaders at the Religious Education Convention held at Medicine Hat, Nov. 16-17. Miss Ziegler has the reputation of being one of the most successful girls workers in Canada, having for many years been in this work for the Y.W.C.A. She is able to speak out of a large experience and bring much help and inspiration to her fellow workers. The opportunity to ask the advice of such a leader at the discussion periods will be appreciated by workers who have problems to solve in their girls' work.

Rev. E. R. McLean, Presbyterian Field Secretary for Sunday School work, may be expected to bring messages of real value to the workers attending the Convention. Mr. McLean will deal with Primary and Junior Department work and will devote a special session to work among Young People and in Adult Bible Classes. A Convention of this kind gives an opportunity to all workers to learn of the most successful methods being used in other fields and to discuss their problems with other workers and expert leaders.

As already announced Mr. Wallace Fergie the Secretary of the Boys' Work Board of Alberta will present special features of the Boys Work Program now being used through out Canada. Mr. Fergie is prepared to visit communities following the Conference to help those who are anxious to advance the interests of Boys Work.

EMPRESS, NOVEMBER 18, 1920

We, the undersigned Merchants give notice that after November 22, 1920 (we will until further advised), conduct our several businesses on a STRICTLY CASH basis---except such accounts which are payable within the month.

For the past three or more years, we have extended credit to many, in order to tide them over against poor crops, and now when a fair crop is here, we are justified in demanding a settlement promptly, not later than NOVEMBER 30th, 1920.

We are informed that many persons are holding their grain in anticipation of a raise, while we are compelled to pay interest on Renewals, which is not fair nor reasonable from a business standpoint.

The Banks and Wholesalers are demanding payment at once and we in turn will have to enforce payment of accounts and restrict credits, if we are to continue in business.

The Bindloss Bazaar

Although this bazaar was not as crowded as the concert, it must be observed that it was a perfect success. The amount taken in, netted about $45 and practically every article was sold. A lunch, served on small tables made it very pleasant. The money collected was excellent considering the number attending. Everybody enjoyed a good time.

The Cleveland School re-opened on Thursday last. The vacation, this year, lasted about five months longer than usual. It is hoped the new school board to be elected for 1921, will secure a teacher who will commence duties in April and continue until the end of the same year, and the board will not teach her. Mr. J. G. Kluczy is teacher until the last of the year.

Pat and the Photograph.

The photographer's clerk was very pre-occupied in showing some samples of work to prospective sitters when Patrick Maloney stalked into the studio and intimated that he would like to know what the pictures were worth.

"Like that, five shillings a dozen," said the girl, handing one.

Pat gazed long and earnestly at the photograph of a very small baby sitting in a wash basin.

"Shure, now," Pat shyly asked, "that would it cost me to have my clothes out?"
